“This album represents the will and the desire to start living again a life that would allow us to take back the spaces we have had to leave, reopening the drawers where we had left the projects, ideas, events that struck us, that we have memorized and that as musicians we translate into music, transforming them into unique pieces. In particular the song EVERYDAY LIFE, a song that I casually listened to on the radio while I was in a shop, I recognized Coldplay right away but not the title. I immediately thought that I would like to make a jazz version of it for my new record and entrust it to my daughter's voice. I am very happy with the result and I definitely consider it one of the best songs on this album.”
