Nicolás Delgado is a jazz guitarist and composer based in Berlin since 2002. Trained at the Taller de Músics in Barcelona, he has developed a style that blends bebop, contemporary jazz, and organ jazz. He leads his own quartet — guitar, tenor saxophone, electric bass, and drums — exploring an expressive sound where original compositions unfold through flexible rhythms and open improvisation. His career reflects a global musical ethic and frequent collaborations with musicians across Europe.

Delgado's music has taken root in international clubs and jam sessions, especially in Berlin's vibrant scene. Since 2023, he has performed regularly at venues such as B-flat and Gravity Bar, where his quartet has become a consistent presence. In June 2025, he presented his latest project Resurrection at the Jazzwoche Berlin festival, confirming his role as a key contributor to the European jazz circuit.

Over the years, Delgado has crafted a distinct identity within the jazz landscape, known for his introspective guitar style and his refined interplay with saxophone, bass, and drums — both in electric and acoustic settings. His music balances structure and spontaneity with clarity and emotional depth.

resurrection

Resurrection is the latest album by Nicolás Delgado, recorded in Berlin and released by Club del Disco. The album features eight original compositions performed by his electric quartet: Ori Jacobson (tenor sax), Francesco Beccaro (electric bass), and Clemens Grassmann (drums).

Rooted in bebop yet open to contemporary aesthetics, the music is rich in expressive melodies, fluid rhythmic language, and bold improvisational moments. Each track creates its own atmosphere, moving from introspective textures to dynamic, high-energy passages.

With this release, Delgado deepens the sonic path he has been shaping throughout his European career. Resurrection is a vibrant and personal statement that reaffirms his identity as a modern jazz composer and performer.
